Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—The stock market today gave one of the best exhibitions of general strength in recent weeks. Buying orders were spread over a broad list with practically all groups, except the railroad equipments and coppers, participating in the upswing. Speculative interest centered largely in the motors, which underwent the traditional "window dressing" on the eve of the opening of the New York automobile show. Business and financial news was mixed in character.

A sharp reaction earlier in the week apparently had eliminated a number of weak speculative accounts, leaving the market in a stronger technical position. The looming demand for stocks still indicates the presence of a large short interest, which is evident by the scramble to cover whenever special issues show signs of concentrated buying.

Heaviness of Pullman, which sold down 3 points, was in further re-fection of a relatively poor November earnings report, while the backwardness of the coppers may have been due to a drop in brass prices.
Nash, Hudson and Pierce-Arrow preferred, each up two points or more, led the advance in motors.

Among the specialties the best gains were recorded by such issues as International Harvester, Continental Baking A. Fox Film A. Otis Elevator, Twin City Rapid Transit,
Stewart Warner and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, all up 2 1/2 to nearly four points.

The Van Swearingen rails, under the leadership of Nickel Plate common, made the best showing in the railroad group.

Rotarians Hear About Fire Alarm

Strip-Night Miles of Wire in Kingston City System—Lightning Principal Cause of Trouble—What happens When Two Boxes Are Pulled.

Rotary luncheon this week in the Coffee Shop at the Governor Clinton was attended by guests from Newburgh and Oneonta. A new member, Stuart English, the new manager of the New York Telephone Co. in the Kingston area, was welcomed and Mr.
Siegist, the new manager of the Governor Clinton, was also introduced and welcomed to the city.

The speaker was Marshall G. Miller, superintendent of the city fire alarm, who described in a very interesting manner what happens when a fire alarm box is pulled, why it happens and the eternal vigilance required in the order that it will happen. There are now 18 non-interfering fire alarm boxes which are superhuman in their intelligent discrimination. If two of these boxes should be pulled at practically the same time, the one pulled first would ring and then, after this alarm was finished, the other one would ring.

There are 68 miles of wire in the system and the principal cause of trouble is from lightning, against which every possible mechanical safeguard is used.

Mr. Miller's talk was in non-technical language that anyone could understand and impressed those who heard it with the importance of maintaining the fire alarm system and the efforts that are required to keep it in order.

Chief Murphy, in reply to questions, made a few remarks on the nuisance and danger resulting from the acts of those who as soon as an alarm is heard rush to the fire and cause congestion of automobile traffic and consequently delay the firemen.

Work as Boy Led To Advancement

Stuart English, who has just succeeded Mr. Potter as district manager in Kingston for the New York Telephone Company, first attracted the attention of the New York Telephone Company management when as a high school boy of Binghamton, N. Y., he acted as leader of a fraternal society which contracted for the delivery of directories in Binghamton, Johnson City and Endicott during 1914, '15 and '16. His efficiency as a leader, determination and energy, procured for him an invitation to join the telephone organization when he had finished his high school course. He was engaged December 2, 1917, as clerk in the Binghamton office, and was promoted to chief clerk of the same office on October 21, 1921. He was appointed manager at Penn Yan November 1, 1923.

Popcorn

When popcorn refuses to "pop" it may be too dry and it may not be dry enough. If it is too dry, it may not be dry enough. Keeping it in a warm place for a week or two will improve it. If the corn is old, it is probably too dry. Putting it in a paper sack, on a shallow pan, where it will not get out but absorb some moisture from the air, will help.

Making Amber Workable

Most of the amber we get in this country is in the way of pipe stems, cigar and cigarette holders and strings of beads of the cheaper variety are pressed under. The better grades and larger pieces either stay in Roman or go to the East. By gradually heating amber in an oil bath it becomes soft and malleable. Then it is hammered into shape.

Origin of Weather Vane

Vanes on the top of steeples were originally made in the form of a cock and put up to point down to wind the change of weather. According to British belief, the crowing of the cock puts ghosts and spirits to flight.

Lines Important in Milady's Coat

Proportions May Be Equalized by Wearing the Proper Wrap.

While many women are limited as to the lines and styles they can wear, every type can be attractively and becomingly dressed if the effect of style upon the figure is studied.

The figure with the large bust may be made to appear more graceful by clothing selected to conceal its defects and to center attention on portions of the figure pleasing in effect.

The dolman line, with its loose, easy fit, conceals rather than reveals the large bust, provided, of course, the draping falls in pleasing lines. Although the dolman emphasizes and frequently increases the size of the upper portion of the figure, the loose, easy sleeves and armholes tend to equalize and distribute the apparent bulk, thus making the bust less conspicuous.

Double-breasted coats, with overlapping thickness of cloth, are not suitable to the large-busted figure. The shawl collar may be becoming while worn open with a deep V down the front and the collar itself concealing the lines of the bust, but it is disastrous when worn closed, with the bulky fur turned inward, increasing the size of the bust.

The straight collar, worn rather high around the neck, tends to equalize the figure by giving less contrast between bust and shoulder and neckline. The scarf collar fulfilling this function and at the same time giving a straight line down the front of the coat and partly concealing the outlines of the bust, may likewise be a wise selection for the woman with a large bust.

Sometimes the bust may be made to appear smaller and the balance of the entire figure improved if the hips are made to appear larger. Belted effects have this advantage and fulfill another function as well—they hold the coat bloused slightly, so that strain over the bust line is relieved. Trimming, particularly fur trimming, placed at the bottom of the coat or as pockets, makes the skirt portion of the coat appear heavier and thus equalizes the figure. The bust then appears smaller.
The danger of this method is that it shortens the figure and therefore can be worn successfully only by the taller figure.

The coat fitting trimly with a normal arm-eye and narrow shoulder line may, with a cleverly handled flare, give the impression that the entire figure is as slim as the emphasized upper portion. If the flare is not gracefully conceived, if, for instance, it flares from the shoulder without revealing the slim portion of the figure above the waist, it may have the unpleasant effect of appearing like an inverted triangle, wide and heavy at the bottom.

The straight-line coat frequently is the best choice of the woman with large hips. Fitting neither loosely nor tightly, it tends to equalize the figure, at the same time giving slender lines.
It is not as pleasing for the large-busted figure, as the weight of the coat rests on the bust, causing this portion of the figure to be made conspicuous.

The heavy pile fabrics are less alenderizing than smooth surfaces. Shiny materials may emphasize high lights, while a soft-napped fabric of dull and supple texture may create becoming shadows, creating an illusion of height.
Cloth coats, particularly those made of the soft, fine fabrics sponsored this season, are lighter in weight than the fur coat, an important consideration for the average woman, particularly one who does much walking.

Costs and Frocks Are Formed Into Ensemble

In general costs and frocks are extremely well considered to form an ensemble. Some ensembles with the cost, being and frock in one fabric have the same hue, tone, and trimmings; in others being and frock are in a contrasting color and perhaps different in fabric; in others again the top part of the being is in the same fabric as the blouse while the bottom part of it matches the cost and skirt, both of which are in the same fabric.

Food for Squirrels
The feed of squirrels in the wild is not abundant, according to the time of the year, seeds and nuts, bark, mushrooms, insects, nesting birds and squirrels. In feeding caged squirregularly some hard-shelled nuts, such as hickory nuts or butternuts, to keep their over-growing incisor teeth firm in their sockets.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 3, 1927.

According to the National Industrial Conference Board, the cost of American public schools has increased seven-fold since 1900. Whether their improvement shows similar increase is not stated.

Not a few newspaper readers have been puzzled by the references to "under-cover men". It seems almost incredible, but the New York World asserts editorially that they belong to "the Government's under-cover Prohibition secret service" and their duties largely consist in running "Government speakies" or "fake saloons" to "entrap" unsuspecting customers. The World gives the street addresses of two alleged Government snafus of this sort in New York.

General Allen has reported officially that infantrymen are overworked at fatigue duty and that their rations have been cut. General Reilly asserts in a magazine article that the soldiers are housed in hovels, are insufficiently fed, and in consequence are deserting at the rate of 1,000 a month. The Government's "economy" is much praised, but in this instance there is no room for boasting and much promise of undesirable results.

The American people, and the American people alone, are entitled to determine what shall be the size of their army and navy. President Coolidge in all his messages to Congress and in his public addresses, has made it plain that we are not only entitled to a force sufficient to defend our territory at home and to protect our interests abroad, but that we are under no obligations to apologize to any foreign nation for the money which we spend to accomplish this end. Back of all this the President seems to feel the people of the country as a whole, while willing to provide a big stick for Uncle Sam, are distinctly opposed to making it so large that it will invite suspicion and distress among our neighbors or so heavy that it will live the backs of the taxpayers who have to pay for it.

THE BIGGEST CROP.

Government statisticians report from time to time on the relative size and value of various crops and from their figures deductions are made that corn, cotton, wheat, or whatever is in the lead, is the country's biggest crop. But there is a bigger crop of which government statisticians take no account—the crop of those of whom Barnum once said that one was born every minute. The world has moved since the day of Barnum and there is reason to believe that the birth rate has increased vastly. The recent arrest and indictment in Atlanta of two men, Garner and Nichols, seems proof. These men had been engaged in operating a mail order business, under a score of names in poultry, seeds, honey, and other farm products on a more or less fraudulent basis without attracting the attention of the authorities. It was a grand coup in oranges that brought about their downfall.

Early in November The Freeman received from the Acme Farms an advertisement offering a "crate of 300 large oranges" for $2.50, delivered free of charge. As 200 large oranges cannot be contained in a standard size orange crate, the advertisement was held up pending an investigation. Before inquiry could be made, a Kingston man who grows oranges in Florida read the advertisement in another newspaper and volunteered full information, which was to the effect that even if a crate would contain 300 oranges of any size, the cost of picking, washing, wrapping, packing, postage and expressage, would be in excess of $2. The problem was to find out how oranges of any size could be sold on such terms. Information disclosed in connection with the arrests under the problem very simply. There were no oranges and the advertiser merely shirked out the money sent in answer as the advertisement and that completed the transaction.

Card Party Tonight.
 A card party will be held this evening at the Masonic Club rooms, Broadway, for the benefit of Kingston Chapter No. 135, O. E. S. Those in charge of the party are Mrs. Ethel Flowers, Mrs. Jane Hutton and Mrs. Bertha Williams. Playing will start promptly at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

ed a double impossibility—300 large oranges in a crate that will hold only half that number of medium size fruit and a price below the cost of packing and transportation, 15,000 letters, half of them estimated to contain cash or checks, were received in four days following the arrest of the swindlers. To give publicity enough to bring in such a quantity of letters, hundreds of newspapers must have been unwarranted contributors to the fraud by printing an advertisement, fraudulent on its face, and offered by a concern without credit rating or reputation.

Yes, the birth rate has increased since Barnum's day and the increase has been in all walks of life, including newspaper men. As a clincher to this assertion, it should be stated that the originators of the swindle have filed as their main defense pleas of insanity.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

HEAT FROM YOUR TISSUES.

When you think about work or exercise you quite naturally think about the tissue that does that work, that is the muscle tissue of the body. When you work you feel your whole body get warm, and that heat is for the most part from the muscles.

However all the tissues are working more or less actively all the time even when the body is at complete rest and no digestion going on. The measurement of the amount of heat the body is making when it is at rest is now measured, and is considered as important as taking the temperature, pulse, and respirations, in a patient.

This measurement of heat is called the basal metabolism. These two words simply mean the lowest measurement of the workings of the body. This of course would be lowest when the body is at rest. Now you might naturally think that tissues are only tissues, and all do about the same amount of work, and create therefore the same amount of heat.

However two United States physicians have been able to prove that some tissues develop more heat than others in the body during rest. They have been able to show that muscle tissue develops about one-half calorie per hour for every pound of tissue, whereas the liver develops twenty times that much, and the other organs in the abdomen two to three times as much as the muscles.

Now when you remember the tremendous size of the liver, and that at body rest it develops this much heat, you can see how important it is from the heat standpoint. With twenty-five per cent of the blood always in the liver, and the ability of the liver cells to create so much heat you can likewise readily understand how the liver maintains or creates practically one-third of the animal heat of the body.

In severe chills of shock from any cause, a hot water bag or hot bricks, properly protected, or electric pads applied about the body in the region of the liver, is going to be very effective.

I certainly seem to talk a lot about the liver, but the more we learn about it the more important we find it to the welfare of the body. You will remember that a little bending exercise or deep breathing will help to massage the liver.

Not All Bad Lands Desert
 The Bad Lands of South Dakota cannot, strictly speaking, be classed as a desert region. The term is somewhat misleading, as the land is fertile, except where it is so steep that vegetation is washed off. In level portions buffalo grass grows and supports great herds of cattle. Good water is usually found in shallow wells and considerable farming is carried on.

TODAY'S STORY IN NEW YORK HISTORY

By Frederic A. Godcharles

(Copyright, 1927, by the Author.)

First Overt Act of Civil War Was the Firing Upon the "Star of the West," Which Sailed January 3, 1861.

The crisis at Fort Sumter was near at hand. It had been resolved, on advice of Secretary of War, Joseph Holt and General Winfield Scott, to send troops to reinforce the garrison, and orders were given for the United States steam frigate "Brooklyn" to be in readiness to sail from Norfolk at a moment's notice.

The disloyal Secretary of the Interior, Jacob Thompson, revealed this order to the conspirators, and the Virginians were ready to seize the "Brooklyn"; the lights of the shore-bacons in Charleston harbor were extinguished, and the buoys that marked the channel were removed.

When President Buchanan was informed of the betrayal of his order, he countermanded it, but it was soon evident that certain members of the cabinet could not be trusted.

Dangers were thickening, and the President, listening to the counsels of Secretary Holt and General Scott, resolved to send supplies and men to Sumter, by stealth, even though it was a humiliating situation when the head of a great nation must resort to secret measures to execute the laws and protect public property. The staunch steam vessel "Star of the West" was chartered by the Government for the purpose and quickly laden with supplies. She was cleared for Savannah and New Orleans, so as to mislead the spies, and steamed away from New York at sunset, January 3, 1861.

When she was far down the bay, she received under cover of thick darkness, four officers and two hundred and fifty artillerymen and marines, with their guns and ammunition, and proceeded to sea, under her commander, Captain John McGowan.

On the morning of January 9, she reached Charleston bar before daylight. Finding all the shore-lights put out, she extinguished her own. Just at dawn a scouting steamboat discovered her, burned colored lights as signals, and ran for the inner harbor. The "Star of the West" had all her soldiers concealed below and was in the guise of a merchant-vessel. The deception was fruitless; her errand was already known.

Alexander Jones, a telegraphic correspondent of the Southern newspapers, had informed the Charleston "Mercury" of the sailing of the vessel from New York, and Secretary Thompson, in possession of the secret, imparted it to the authorities at Charleston. "As I was writing resignation," he afterwards wrote, "I sent a despatch to Judge Long, street that the 'Star of the West' was coming with reinforcements." He also gave a messenger another despatch, as if by authority, "Blow the 'Star of the West' out of the water." The messenger patriotically withheld the second despatch.

When the vessel was within two miles of Fort Sumter, unsuspecting of danger, a shot came ricocheting across her bow from a masked battery on Morris Island, three-fourths of a mile distant.

The national flag was flying over the "Star of the West," and her captain immediately displayed a large American ensign at the fore. As she passed on, a continuous fire was kept up from Morris Island, and an occasional shot from Fort Moultrie was heard at her. Two steam tugs and an armed schooner put out from Fort Moultrie to intercept her.

Captain McGowan, finding himself hemmed in, powerless, and in imminent danger of capture, turned his vessel seaward, after seventeen shots had been fired by the insurgents, and returned to New York, January 12.

The firing on the flag of the United States was the very first overt act of war that marked the inauguration of the great Civil War of 1861-65.

Had Major Anderson, in Sumter, then known that loyal men were in power in his government, he would have opened the guns of the fortress, and the "Star of the West" and her precious freight would not have been driven to sea.

There was great exultation in South Carolina because of this act of war. The Legislature resolved that they learned with pride and pleasure of the successful resistance to an attempt to reinforce Fort Sumter. The newspapers were equally enthusiastic in their approval of the overt act, and very confident of the outcome of the issue which that day marked the beginning of the great civil strife.

Dairy Day Feature Of Farmers' Week

Thursday, February 10, has been designated as Dairy Day on the program of the 1927 Farmers' Week at the State College of Agriculture—Banquet by Students in Evening.

One of the features of the twentieth annual Farmers' Week held at the New York state college of agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., February 7 to 12, 1927, is "dairy day"—Thursday, February 10.

On that day, at 10 a. m., Dean V. A. Moore, head of the New York state college of veterinary medicine, will discuss the importance of the physical examination in stamping out bovine tuberculosis.

Following Dean Moore, Commissioner Bernie E. Pyrk, head of the state department of farms and markets, will tell of the progress made in the state against tuberculosis of cattle.

Peter G. Ten Eyck, formerly president of the state federation of Farm Bureaus, and now chairman of the newly-formed dairymen's committee of twelve, will talk on cooperation among dairymen.

In the afternoon Dean Herbert E. Cook, former head of the state school of agriculture at Canton, and now with the American Agriculturalist, will discuss some problems which will be of interest to dairymen during the coming year. Charles H. Tuck, of the dairymen's league, will talk on promotion of the dairy industry in New York.

Dairy Congress Head.

Following these men, H. B. Van Norman, president of the American dry milk institute and president of the 1923 world's dairy congress, will talk on marketing skim milk solids. In the evening a banquet will be served by the Cornell dairy students in the new dairy building on the campus.

Some of the other high points in the program are a series of lectures each day at 11 a. m., by Dr. G. F. Warren, of the department of agricultural economics and farm management, on farm prices, the agricultural depression, and other economic topics. A conference on Tuesday and Wednesday on the rural church and another on Thursday and Friday for grange lectures have been arranged by the department of rural social organization.

On Wednesday, Professor H. H. Wing, head of the animal husbandry department, who was in Chile, South America, recently judging dairy cattle at a Chilean national exposition, will tell of some of his observations of the dairy industry there.

Classes Banquet And Present Gifts

Officers of the Philathea and Baracca Classes of the Wurts Street Baptist Church were installed Tuesday evening in the chapel of the church and following the installation a banquet was served with Floyd W. Powell as toastmaster.

During the evening a program of entertainment was given during which Mrs. C. E. Powell gave a piano solo. Jensen brothers gave numbers on the violin and cornet, accompanied by Miss Katherine Tremper at the piano, and Mrs. Dwight McEntee and daughter, Julia, rendered a piano duet.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith were presented with a floor lamp during the evening and Mrs. George Spielman, president of the Philathea Class, was given a silver casserole by the members of the class. With very appropriate ceremonies the officers of the two classes were presented with the insignia of their office. The women were given a rolling pin to maintain order and to the men the present was a hammer. The presentation was accompanied with humorous instruction for the use of each article.

Officers of the Philathea Class are: Mrs. George Spielman, president; Mrs. Floyd W. Powell, vice president; Mrs. N. H. Rode, secretary; Mrs. Harry Tremper, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Freidell, missionary treasurer, and Miss Josephine Cromie, teacher.

Officers of the Baracca Class are: Harry Tremper, president; James Legg, vice president; Dwight McEntee, secretary; Harold Freidell, treasurer; the Rev. C. B. Smith, teacher.

Following the installation of officers the members of the classes sang the class song, "Onward Christian Soldiers".

HOMESPUN YARN.

A thin coat of lacquer will keep brass fixtures from tarnishing.

Don't put wet shoes too near a hot stove or register, for leather burns easily.

To save time in cutting cloth, a wrinkled pattern should be pressed before it is used.

Shorter days and less sunlight mean that we must get out doors as much as possible during the middle of the day.

A switch in the handle of the electric iron saves time, for you don't have to bother with the plug to regulate the heat.

Aunt Ada's Axioms: Good manners add a lot to home life, for they make it easier and more pleasant to get along with those about us.

To housewives who have to use water that is carried into the house, get your husbands interested in a hydraulic ram and a few inexpensive fixtures for the kitchen. The college at Ithaca, N. Y., has a bulletin on this subject which may be had by asking for E 145 on a post card.

AGRICULTURE.

Have you made your farm inventory?

Uncle Ab says most of the remedies for farmers' ills are proposed by men who want to remedy their own political fortunes.

The beginning of the year is a good time to make sure that the old reliable home-town paper is coming for the next twelve months or so.

The farm value of crops produced in New York during 1926 showed an increase of nine per cent over the preceding year. What will 1927 show?

A hydraulic ram will operate if the water delivered to it has a fall of at least three feet and flows at a rate of at least two to six gallons a minute.

An exhibit of honey-selling helps will be a feature of the bee-keeping short course at the New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., January 24 to 25.

Dr. G. F. Warren, agricultural economist, says: If the price farmers receive were as high above post-war farm prices as retail prices are above pre-war retail prices, the farmers would be getting a cash income of $1,946,999,999 more than they are now receiving.

Card of Thanks.

I desire in this manner to express my most sincere and heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted me during the illness and death of my brother, J. Francis Hoffman. I also want to thank the members of Kingston Council K. of C. and St. Peter's Holy Name Society and all friends who sent the beautiful floral tributes.

Zoning Board Lacked Quorum

The zoning board of appeals lacked a quorum at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the city hall and adjourned to Wednesday evening, January 12, at which time the appeal of the Newcomb Oil Corporation will be heard. The Newcomb Corporation is anxious to enlarge the present drive-in gas station at Broadway and Delaware avenue and to erect a brick lunch room and rest rooms on the site now occupied by the frame dwelling house, which will be removed. The request to modernize the situation was denied last year by the board of public works when neighbors in the vicinity of the station lodged objections to the plan.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

Wool Is Voted Smarter Than Silk for Day Wear, and a Bright Dress Is Often Discarded Under a Dark Hat.

Paris.—Surely there can be no greater joy than to be privileged to follow the mode, unless it be to be one of the favored few who launch it. While there really seems to be little that is drastically new, the close observer detects all sorts of differences in dress between this and last year, and even senses a change from week to week.

There is, first, the preference for wool and warm dresses, against the erstwhile preference for crepe, worn irrespective of the season. Weather conditions obviously have no responsibility in the matter, for there is no more crying need for comfortable warmth this year than any other. It is simply the fashion to be wrapped in wool.

Crepella is one of the leading materials that has success written large about it. Kaisha continues to be worn, Big Wool Jersey Is Combined with Black Crepe Skirt in a Two-Piece Frock by Yvonne Caron. The jumper, in short jacket effect, is of the Jersey Tricot with Satin Bands, and the Fluffy Plumed Skirt is of Satin. The Black Leather Belt is finished with a Metal Buckle.

and all manner of new jersey weaves, to say nothing of velvet and even broadcloth, make the way of the crepe dress less certain to lead to success.

Even for the Riviera, for Palm Beach, and for Northern Africa, one is admonished to choose wool and to include a top coat, which may or may not match the frock underneath. One hears less of the convertible, but the idea persists, and is interpreted variously.

Paris likes to wear a light frock underneath a dark coat, but contrives in some way to suggest that it is the particular dress designed for that particular coat, which is, after all, the essence of the convertible.

Bright purple, bright or dark red, and beige or gray are colors most frequently worn under the all-black or blue coat, more often than not trimmed with beige or gray fur.

Hankow Situation Considered Grave

London, Jan. 5 (AP).—Frantic appeals for more land and naval forces are being made by the British community at Hankow to the British government.

The foreign office today said that the situation at Hankow was fraught with the gravest dangers but that it was felt that the British authorities on the spot would be successful in averting armed conflict.

The situation is considered eased by the evacuation of the British marines and the placing of responsibility for law and order within the British concession on the Chinese authorities themselves.

It was stated that the position of the British merchant marines, who were holding mobs at bay but under the strictest orders not to fire a shot, was untenable, and that consequently the evacuation had been directed.

The foreign office says that the Hankow disturbance was due to Cantonese agitators attempting to provoke the British to use force in defense of the British concession, thereby stirring up another crisis such as took place recently at Wanchow in order to embarrass Great Britain's newly declared policy of conciliation.

A report that British women and children already have evacuated Hankow could not be confirmed.

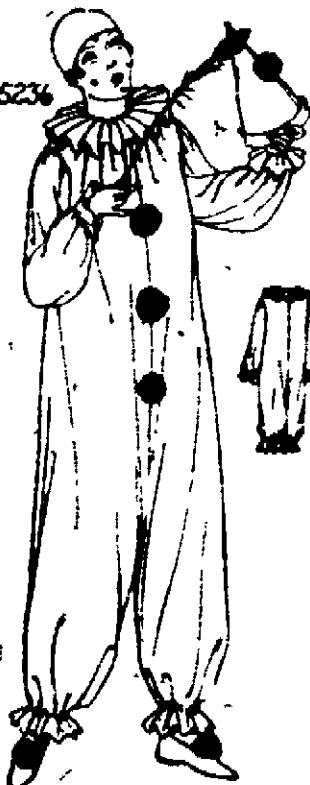

MISS BARRETT WITHDRAWS FROM WRIGLEY SWIM.

Los Angeles, Jan. 5 (AP).—Traffic congestion in the channel between Santa Catalina Island and the California mainland January 15, when swimmers will throng the waters in a try for the $40,000 prize money offered by William Wrigley, Jr., was lessened to the extent of one mermaid today when Miss Clarabelle Barrett, New Rochelle, N. Y., school teacher, withdrew.

Miss Barrett, who gained fame by her plucky fight against the English Channel, said that currents of extremely cold water to be encountered by the swimmer in the California current are a barrier which no contestant can hope to overcome.

For the last month Miss Barrett has been in training at Avalon on Santa Catalina Island and she said neither the distance nor the length of time to be taken in the swim daunted her but that the temperature was quite another matter. In one of her English Channel attempts she was in the water 21 hours and 35 minutes.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Outline of Message.

"We now face the test of a continuing policy which has produced far-reaching administrative changes and a long-time program for the expansion and conduct of the public works of the State."

"This very program is now an outer form, an instrument, a tool with which to make our government more responsive to the public will and more efficient in the conduct of its affairs. The real test of its effectiveness will not be the perfection of its functioning alone. No enterprise is great just because it is well organized. Government must be more than a machine for performing a routine. It must have the ability to clothe itself with human understanding of the daily, living needs of those whom it is created to serve. Primarily my interest is in effecting that combination of the improved functioning of the instrumentality of the State Government which will never lose sight of the inner meaning of democratic government. The reorganized government must be able to safeguard the health, living, working and business conditions of all the people, and to care adequately for the unfortunate who cannot care for themselves."

"The newly reorganized government should not become a mere rearrangement and consolidation but a great business operating openly, smoothly and responsibly, to produce at minimum cost and with reasonable dispatch the things and the results the people have voted and are paying for."

Finance
The total estimated revenues and receipts, $178,060,537.25. Estimated clear, unencumbered surplus, July 1, 1927, $36,292,990.51. Total estimated available resources against which appropriations made, $204,353,527.75.

Taxation
A careful analysis of all requests for appropriations this year and of our estimated resources will leave the State, I am satisfied, in a position to make reductions to our taxpayers very much along the lines adopted at the last session of the Legislature."

Recommends more equitable distribution of taxation.
Reorganization of the Government
To meet the change that the State has gradually undergone from a loose aggregation of activities largely regulatory, to a great corporation, it must change methods as well as structure to meet the conditions of the times. Attention has so far been focused on the structure which was modernized by the constitutional amendment. The methods by which the structure will function can be modernized by administration and a few well-considered changes in law."

Cities appearance before Reorganization Commission and recommendations made to them. Will communicate further when commission reports, if need arises.

Further economies will be produced by joint housing of departments in Albany, New York City and Buffalo State office buildings.

Civil Service
Preferred lists of four years' duration to be established of civil service employees who lose places because of consolidation of departments.

Executive Budget
Recommends second passing of executive budget amendment.
Four Year Term
Requests initiation of a new amendment placing first election of Governor for four year term in 1930.

"Moreover, neither of the great political parties should be permitted to yield to the temptation to nominate for the governorship inferior men in the hope that they may get a quick ride into the Executive Chamber in Albany behind some great national issue about which they may have no understanding and which would in no way affect the government of State. Governors should not be elected because of their ideas on the tariff or foreign relations, but solely upon their ability to conduct the business of the people of the State of New York wisely and economically."

Biennial Sessions of the Legislature
County Government
Non-partisan study recommended. Increasing cost of local governments. "I appreciate that this suggestion is not very popular with political machines because the control of county patronage forms the groundwork for a fighting organization. The same argument was offered in certain circles against the consolidation of the State government. The people are gradually awakening to a better understanding of the process of government and have about arrived at the point where they desire to see political machines survive because of the character of service they render rather than because of their ability to find additional patronage at the expense of the tax and rent-payers."

County Home Rule
Salary grab bills for county canvassers: Counties to be empowered to exercise control over own fiscal affairs.

Public Utilities and Home Rule
Cites quotations from Annual Messages 1923-24-25 and 26 recommending: (1) Return to localities of control over their own contracts with public utility corporations. (2) Authority to be given regulatory power over utilities which within their own borders if they so request. Municipal ownership and operation of public utilities should not be hampered.

Good Roads
Will report program made and recommendations for further expenditures in later message.

Grade Crossings

Further amendment to Constitution recommended so that larger unit (the county) may be substituted in rural communities. Suggests conference between agencies.

"Agencies of the government charged with the work and representatives of the Legislature. Such a conference I will be very pleased to attend."

"It will not do to let the people of the State continue to read from the public prints the gruesome details of these grade crossing disasters after they have so generously made provision for their elimination. The proper working of the machinery to make effective the will of the people is our job. Let us take it up in man fashion and finish it."

Highways
Necessity for widening 2,469 miles of worn-out old roads should be rebuilt. Estimated cost, $112,000,000. Rebuilding all bridges on State highway system condemned after Jan. 1, 1928. State's share of cost, $7,300,000. Three thousand seven hundred miles of highways on adopted system, still unbuild, will cost $180,000,000. Continuation of road widening in Erie and Nassau counties.
"Just as the State has faced other problems of great magnitude and requiring a great outlay of money, it must face the highway problem."

Barge Canal
Increased tonnage in past year; greatest since canal opened. Recommends resolutions for negotiations with the Federal government so that All-American ship canal via Oswego-Hudson River route may be built. Meanwhile, requests adequate appropriations to maintain Barge Canal.

Water Power
History of water power legislation and policy in State. Fundamental principle.

"That the State must itself retain ownership and control of water power at its source if the people and not private interests are to be the real beneficiaries by its development."

State lacks.
"A comprehensive plan developed principally in the public interest and an effective administrative control for carrying it out."

Control of water power under reorganization also inadequate even though approval of Governor for all rights or lease is required. Inadequacy of regulation of private control of public utilities.

"Experience with regulatory bodies and recent court decisions makes it extremely doubtful that once control has passed away to private interests from the people themselves by lease or franchise that public interests can receive from these bodies the measure of protection which they require. To attempt to protect the consumer only through the regulatory power of the State, is to hold out to him a promise which we know cannot be fulfilled. Public utility regulation by Public Service Commissions or Interstate Commerce Commission involves long drawn out battles, in which experts disagree over capital accounts. The place to protect the consumer is at the bus bar, when we make the contract for the sale of the power. In that contract we can make certain that the capital investment will be accurately agreed upon and even the charge to the consumer determined in advance, as we have done in the 'Housing Law'."

Cities Boulder Dam project.
Port Authorities as types of agencies.

"I therefore propose the creation of a Power Authority as a body corporate and politic, vested with ownership and control for the State of all water power resources belonging to the State. This will not be a new or separate department any more than the Port Authorities of New York and Albany are considered State departments. They are agencies of the State and the Power Authority which I propose will hold the same position in our government."

"The Power Authority should be empowered to issue its own tax exempt securities for the development of such power enterprises as they can successfully demonstrate have economic value. It should also be required to report to the Legislature at the earliest possible moment a comprehensive legal, financial and engineering plan for the development of the water power resources of the State. Until the plan is adopted by the Legislature the Power Authority will have no right to proceed. Once the plan has been adopted, the Power Authority can proceed to finance the projects by the issuance of its own securities. Legislative control is safeguarded by conditioning the exercise of the powers of the Power Authority upon its own approval of such a comprehensive plan, following the precedent the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey adopted in dealing with the Port of New York."

"We have wasted so many years in trying various plans all leading to private development that surely this proposal to give an agency of the State founded on so to secure the best engineering and legal services available, an opportunity to present a plan in the interests of the State—or even to report that no such plan is feasible, is worth a trial."

"The Power Authority should also be enabled to represent the State in the important negotiations that must be conducted with other States, the Federal Government and with Canada. "I ask for no untold experiment but for a sound business conduct of what should be a most valuable business on part of the State and I confidently assert that the people will never again consent to the alienation of any of these properties to private interests."

Progress of Port Authorities, New York and Albany

Conservation:
Reforestation, fire protection, tree protection; license fees.
Power to make regulations.
Parks in later message on bond issue expenditures.

Provisions to be made for partial self-sustaining maintenance.

Agriculture:
Position of State.
Eradication of bovine tuberculosis.
Milk and food inspections.
Elimination of plant diseases.
Rural population.

Labor:
Legislative committee on labor legislation.

"There seemed to be no real reason for the appointment of such committees except to postpone action on these measures, the facts in connection with which were well known. The work of these various committees has been productive of no real results and I sincerely hope that the committee which was appointed at the last session of the Legislature to study the subject may by its report indicate the desirability of prompt action on these matters by the Legislature."

Forty-eight hour law.
Minimum wage board.
Labor and compensation program outlined.

Unjust discrimination against women in the law.
Housing:
Rent emergency laws expire June 1, 1927.

Housing Board to investigate and report on need for continuance.
State Housing Board and limited dividend companies.

"The board has made a study of possible operations in New York City under the act and with them I have invited the investment of capital in limited dividend companies under the act. There is no apparent lack of money on first mortgage at 5 per cent for these undertakings; but it remains to be seen whether capital in sufficient amount to offset the situation can be enlisted for the one-third equity investment required by the law at a limited dividend at 6 per cent. I am convinced we are sound in theory; but whether we have carried it far enough, only those with capital to invest and the public interest at heart can demonstrate."

Public Health:
Decrease in deaths from preventable diseases.
Deaths from alcoholism increasing.
County Health Units.

State aid to rural communities. Physically handicapped children. State laboratories.

Working of Medical Practice Act.
Mental Hygiene:
Advantages of consolidated department.

Advances in prevention of mental diseases.
Research.
Removal of alien and non-resident insane.

Fire protection.
Crimes and Correction
Improvements in system in recent years.

Rural schools.
Increased quotas.
"There can be no question as to the ability of the State to finance its educational program. No matter what may be the stress of the times, no matter what may be the necessity for retrenchment, a sacred duty rests upon the State and her people to keep her Department of Education at all times at 100 per cent of efficiency. I trust that those same recommendations of the commission appointed for that purpose may this year be given full approval and result in the necessary constructive and remedial legislation."

Continuation and Agricultural schools.
Abolition of motion picture censorship.

Child Welfare:
Aid to localities for child welfare boards.

National Guard:
Detailed message later.

Political Instrumentalities:
"Improvement of our political machinery for establishing government has not kept pace with administrative reorganization. We are too apt to thrust it into the background to await attention at some time of less pressure. But these functions are important in a democracy and successful government may suffer by their neglect."

Census: Direct Primary: Corrupt Practice Act.

"If this is intended to prevent corruption at the polls, why should not the people have that statement before election? What benefit comes from its publication after election? The corrupt use of money in elections rather than the very foundation stone of democratic government. The sanctity of the ballot box is the bulwark of democratic government in Nation and State. Strong public feeling against the corrupt use of money to influence elections exists not only in our own State but throughout the Nation."

Popular constitutional initiative.
Memorial to Congress on Modification of the Volstead Act in accordance with result of Prohibition Amendment.

"I think you will agree with me that some of our difficulties in the past have been due to the fact that policies have been initiated where it does not belong. The balance of my suggestions have to do with a better and more businesslike management of the State's everyday affairs. If there are any reasons for disagreement I certainly am not to be so on principle involved."

It must be as to the manner and method of carrying it into effect."
Offer of co-operation with Legislature. On request will appear before them and discuss any proposal made.

STATE OF NEW YORK
Executive Chamber
Albany, January 5, 1927.

To the Legislature:
Our State enters upon the new chapter in its history, the year 1927, with all the advantages of a carefully prepared program for such an administration of its affairs as will enable it to serve the best interests of all of our people.

The last twenty years have witnessed the greatest material progress in the history of the world. During that period the ingenuity of man has been brought into full play and a decided advance may be noted on every hand. Government should keep abreast of every other material development. We owe it to our State to keep it in the very front line of the commonwealths of the country.

In six years of my own service as Chief Executive, I have constantly held that ideal before me and we now face the test of a continuing policy which has produced far-reaching administrative changes and a long-time program for the expansion and conduct of the public works of the State.

It is not sufficient, nor is it possible, to rest here. The State is a living force. This very program is now an outer form, an instrument, a tool with which to make our government more responsive to the public will and more efficient in the conduct of its affairs. The real test of its effectiveness will not be the perfection of its functioning alone. No enterprise is great just because it is well-organized. Government must be more than a machine for performing a routine. It must have the ability to clothe itself with human understanding of the daily, living needs of those whom it is created to serve. Primarily my interest is in effecting that combination of the improved functioning of the instrumentality of the State government which will never lose sight of the inner meaning of democratic government. The reorganized government must be able to safeguard the health, living, working and business conditions of all the people, and to care adequately for the unfortunate who cannot care for themselves. Not an iota of progress can be sacrificed and the State must continue to go forward to new attainment where that is needed. The newly reorganized government should not become a mere rearrangement and consolidation but a great business operating openly, smoothly and responsibly, to produce at minimum cost and with reasonable dispatch the things and the results the people have voted and are paying for.

Security of democratic government rests upon the ability of the chosen representatives of the people to translate the public will into action. Whatever there may have been of cross currents in public opinion during the heat of a political campaign, after the people have made their decision we should all join hands, irrespective of our political disagreements, in an effort to give to the State the very best of which we are capable.

In this message I shall deal briefly with the present condition of the State, making recommendations for future improvements and from time to time during the session I shall communicate with you in greater detail concerning various activities of the State.

Financial Condition of the State.
In compliance with the Constitution, I present by this message to your Honorable Bodies the present financial condition of the State in simple language in the hope that it will be read and understood by all of our people.

The State does not use the calendar year for the management of its fiscal affairs but takes the year as beginning July first and ending on the thirtieth of June following.

On June 30, 1926, the State of New York owed to its bondholders $316,525,000.00.

To meet that indebtedness the State had in its various funds $459,357.44.

These various funds will have annual contributions made to them sufficient to pay the entire obligation as the different bonds become due.

To pay the expense of running the State from the 1st of July, 1927, we must have an income, inasmuch as that period is six months away, that income can be necessarily only be estimated and the Comptroller estimates our income for that period as follows:

General property tax $21,000,000.00
Court and stamp duties 764,152.46
Armory tax 1,164,624.52

$22,928,776.98

Special taxes
Corporation tax $45,100,000.00
Organization of corporations 2,000,000.00
Personal income tax 22,000,000.00
Insurance premium tax 2,000,000.00
Inheritance tax $7,000,000.00
Stock transfer tax 12,000,000.00
Mortgage tax 6,000,000.00
Motor vehicle tax 20,000,000.00
Betting exhibit tax 200,000.00
Motion picture tax 200,000.00
Arrears, tax sales, redemptions 200,000.00

$103,139,000.00

Other revenues and receipts 20,000,000.00

Total estimated revenues and receipts $178,060,537.25

The Comptroller further estimates that on July 1, 1927, we will have in the General Fund, a cash balance of $35,000,107.53.

Inasmuch as we will charge ourselves on the side of appropriations with certain immediately available ones, in order to balance the books, we must establish what part of the immediately available appropriations will be expended prior to July 1, 1927. This expenditure will come out of current funds or receipts from the State's various sources of income during the first half of the calendar year of 1927. Based on our experience in the past, this is estimated at $20,000,000.00.

That amount must be added to the General Fund Cash Balance as of July first, because it is obvious that if no immediately available appropriations were made by the Legislature of 1927, that sum would go from income into cash balance. Therefore, the estimated cash balance on July 1, 1927, can be set forth at $64,080,107.53.

However, it is estimated that there will be carried over into the next fiscal year commitments by appropriations of prior years amounting in round figures to $7,787,117.01.

Leaving an estimated clear, unencumbered surplus on July 1, 1927, after providing for all prior commitments, of $56,292,990.51.

This might well be referred to as the State's free clear money in the surplus account against which no person has any claim.

Adding the estimated revenues and receipts for the next fiscal year, as I have detailed them above, to this surplus $178,060,537.25

We will have total estimated available resources for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1927, against which appropriations may be made, amounting to $204,353,527.75.

Tax Reduction
In 1926 the Legislature appropriated for the support of the government approximately a total of One Hundred and Eighty-six Million Dollars. A careful analysis of all requests for appropriation this year and of our estimated resources will leave the State, I am satisfied, in a position to make reductions to our taxpayers very much along the lines adopted at the last session of the Legislature. I am satisfied that the financial committees of both Houses will give this matter their close attention and will safeguard to the last degree every expenditure large and small of the public money, as zealously as the finances of a private corporation are protected.

Taxation
Taxation makes such a large draft upon the pocketbooks of all the people that the whole matter becomes one of very great importance. Too many people hold the belief that taxes indirectly paid burden only the few. The truth is that in this last analysis taxation is borne by all the citizens of the State in varying measure, and it should be levied in proportion to their ability to meet the impost. As the State grows, as its activities expand, so also will the cost of maintaining it expand. The State has all the problems that confront the business man or the housewife. The State buys food, fuel and clothing in large quantities and it has to meet the landlord for the housing of many of the departments of the government. The cost of all these things has steadily mounted in recent years and accounts in a large measure for the increased cost of supporting the government.

Equitable Distribution of Taxation.
The important feature of taxation from the standpoint of the State is that it should be equitably distributed. Nothing goes further to promote discontent and dissatisfaction than the knowledge that any one class of our citizens is being unduly or improperly taxed for things that are not of benefit to all. We have made some progress each year. The changes in inheritance, bank, income and factory taxes, were all helpful in this direction.

For some years back a committee of your Honorable Bodies and the State Tax Commission have made important studies of taxation and have reported annually deficits and surplus suggestions for a more equitable distribution of the burden. I ask that your Honorable Bodies go carefully into these reports and exact from me such definite suggestions as are unquestionably designed to improve the State's entire system of taxation.

Reorganization of Government.
Many times by taxation passed through two main channels. One is the cost of maintenance of the routine administration of government. The other is the financing of activities concerned with the construction of public works and the acquisition of new lands or other possessions that will benefit the State. In order to improve the machinery by which spending agencies operate and also for greater efficiency and responsibility, by constitutional and statute law the entire framework of our government underwent a change as of the first of January and the heretofore disjointed, scattered and loose system of administering the government has been by law united into eighteen major departments of the government. Of necessity, the legislation making effective the constitutional amendment for consolidation was hurriedly drawn and passed. Consequently, much remains to be done in order to give the proper force and effect to the constitutional letter and intent.

To meet the change the State has gradually undergone from a loose aggregation of activities largely regulatory, to a great corporation, it must change methods as well as structure to meet the conditions of the times. Attention has so far been focused on the structure which was modernized by the constitutional amendment. The methods by which the structure will function can be modernized by administration and a few well-considered changes in law.

Recommendations to Reorganization Commission

Your Honorable Bodies appointed a commission to make further study into the statutes and to propose amendments during your present session. I have already directed a communication to that commission and during the month just passed, I have appeared in person before them and made certain specific and definite recommendations looking to a more orderly distribution of the State functions within the departments. I earnestly hope that your Honorable Bodies will give these and the suggestions of your own committee very very careful attention. After the report of the commission has been considered by your Honorable Bodies should occasion arise, I will communicate further with you on this subject.

Elections in Non-Presidential Year.
In the Constitutional Convention of 1924, election of Mayors in the various cities of the State was by constitutional law placed in years when the people are not selecting a Governor. The reason given at the time was that the selection of a Mayor of a city is important enough not to have it overshadowed by the consideration of issues that surround the election of a Governor. If that was good sense reasoning then, and I believe it was, greater reason exists today why no election for Governor should be held while the public mind is absorbed with the great national and international questions that present themselves for discussion in a presidential election. Moreover, neither of the great political parties should be permitted to yield to the temptation to nominate for the governorship inferior men in the hope that they may get a quick ride into the Executive Chamber in Albany behind some great national issue about which they may have no understanding and which would in no way affect the government of the State. Governors should not be elected because of their ideas on the tariff or foreign relations, but solely upon their ability to conduct the business of the people of the State of New York wisely and economically. I recommend the institution of a new amendment designed to make the term of the Governor four years, with the first election to be held in 1930.

Decrease in Direct Tax Not Reflected in Counties.
Last year there was granted to the taxpayers on real property a substantial decrease in the State's tax levied against real property. A large part of the burden of the cost of government falls upon real property and that in turn is reflected in the rent, so that the real payer is the real taxpayer. I think I am safely within the truth in asserting that not a single taxpayer in a single county in the State received the slightest benefit by any reduction of this reduction in their local taxation. On the contrary, the State's return to the counties was absorbed by apparently increased activities. In fact the cost of supporting these units of government is increasing $6,000,000 to $10,000,000 yearly and the burden of that taxation is the real one which people in the rural communities feel so heavy.

I have faith in the legislative intent to do its very best for the State. It is a great distinction to be one of the few lawmakers for the greatest State in the Republic, a State that is an empire in itself. As I view it, I am convinced that in all of its progress, it has had the sustaining hand of a Divine Providence to guide it, and in a humble way we should express our gratitude by having ever before us as our first consideration the care of the poor, the weak, the sick and the afflicted, and the promotion of the welfare of all our people.

While I express my full confidence in the soundness of all my recommendations, I am nevertheless ready and willing to talk over every proposal before me or for that matter, any phase of the State government with the leaders of your Honorable Bodies at any time during your session. If, at any time, you feel ready to request it, I will be glad to appear before you at joint session and in the presence of all the members of the Legislature, publicly discuss any proposal made in this or any special message that I may broadcast send to you.

(Signed) ALFRED E. SMITH.

Pupils to Publish Their Own Poems

High School Pupils of Amsterdam, N. Y., Will Bring Out Anthology—Verse Writing Included in Each Year's Work of High School Pupils.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Jan. 5 (AP).—Pupils in the English classes at the Amsterdam High School are planning to publish an anthology of their own poems. Their project is being encouraged by James R. Kelton, principal, and by Mrs. Louise L. Livingston, the English teacher who gives the course that has been productive of enough original poetry to warrant the appearance of the book at the end of the present school year. The volume will include verse written by recent graduates of the school.

Mrs. Livingston believes that the purpose of a modern poetry course in a high school is to teach appreciation of verse and to develop within the pupil, wherever possible, expression in poetic form. Attempts at verse writing are included in the work of each of the four years, although it is only in the senior year that the study is taken up in detail. The sonnet is the poetic pattern most favored by Mrs. Livingston's pupils, and several of the poems already selected for the anthology are cast in this difficult form. One in particular, written by Miss Catherine Cline, member of the class of 1925 and daughter of former Mayor James R. Cline, has been highly praised. It follows:

Blindness.

When I perceive how many lovely things
Surround us in this world of ours,
The grass, the trees, the bird who sings
His golden notes to brighten day-time hours,
The blue of summer skies, the red and gold
Of frosty Autumn days, and soft Spring air,
I sometimes wonder how the world can hold
So much entrancing beauty everywhere.
And when I notice those about me
Frown, So full of discontent and care and strife,
Who live in darkness and, with eyes cast down,
Unseeing pass the better things in life,
I marvel that they all can be so blind,
And in the world so little gladness find.

"As poetry makes its appeal primarily to the emotions," said Mrs. Livingston in discussing her course today. "I believe that the mode of approach is, first of all, through sound. The musical quality or melody that runs through the poem helps to create for us the feeling of the poet. Hence, I begin by reading aloud to the class, from book and blackboard; verses by Poe, Swinburne, Tennyson, Noyes, Lanier and others. All through the course, a part of the daily program consists of good reading aloud by teacher, pupil or class. Also, with regard to expression through sound, attention is focused upon meter, rhyming schemes, alliteration and various other devices for securing tone color.

"Architecture" of a Poem.
"The work naturally leads to a consideration of the plan or 'architecture' of a poem. I always begin with the pattern of the sonnet, having six or eight sonnets written on the blackboard. As I read each poem from the board, the form or scheme of the whole is developed, or one might say, unfolded before the eyes of the class. From the sonnet, one passes on to other patterns. In the study of forms, the fitting of subject matter to pattern has to be noted.

"Having progressed thus far in the course, the class understands that to appreciate poetry one must use both the ear and the eye."

After the pupils have studied sound and form their attention is directed to the use of images and symbols.
"Again from book and blackboard," Mrs. Livingston continued, "I read quotations which possess appeal to one or more of the senses. The class is asked to detect appeal through sight, odor, taste, etc. From definite illustrations, we study word pictures that stand for ideas and concrete objects that possess poetic suggestion. Here are reviewed all the figures of speech.

Thought Most Often Suggested.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them with Creosolene, an excellent remedy that is pleasant to take. Creosolene is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosolene is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creosolene contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the root of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Creosolene is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, laryngitis, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory distress, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—That interesting, enigmatical creature, the present day girl, as he describes her, has about reached the end of her rope with John Philip Sousa. At an opera in Philadelphia the composer was disturbed by a deep toned cough. He sent an usher for some drops and offered them to the suffering "young man," but discovered the cougher was a boyish-bobbed young beauty. "Gee," he writes, "that girl coughed like a man and a bass man at that."

Somerville, N. J.—Fifteen-year-old Doris Duke, probably the richest girl of her age in the world, is worth $53,451,069. It is shown in an accounting of the estate of her father, James Buchanan Duke, tobacco magnate. She began riding in a $250 baby carriage and now has a $35,000 Pullman car, three automobiles and a stable of thoroughbreds. It cost $6,000 to furnish her boudoir in her New York town house. She also owns a place in fashionable Newport and a 2,000 acre country estate near Somerville.

New York—"The Queen of Cooks" thinks the United States has some of the finest cooking in the world, that of the American negro. Mrs. Rosa Lewis, who began as a scullery maid 48 years ago and now owns a hotel in London, says the negro has contributed something original to the art, and tried chicken, beaten biscuits and spoon bread are among the best dishes ever tasted. Thinking that women make the best cooks, she employs no men.

Rome—The Charleston and the Black Bottom are forbidden in night clubs, also the two step and waltz; in fact all dances. A patron can't do a thing but drink and listen to songs and jazz music.

New York—First thing Arturo Toscanini required when he landed on these shores was a drink—of milk, fermented. The Italian conductor lives on it almost entirely when on tour.

Camden, N. J.—Wives would be better off if they talked less, in the opinion of Judge Samuel Shaw. And so he dismissed a separation suit with advice that a reconciliation be attempted.

New York—What would you do in a bridge game if you held thirteen hearts, bid six and were doubled? Miss Annette Miller was so excited that she failed to redouble.

Chicago—Some shoes will match the checks this year. Among the popular hues ascribed to the National Shoe Retailer's Association is roseblush.

New York—Pro-bobs and anti-bobs are having a disagreement at the Beauty Shop Owners' convention, but the pros preponderate. "Symbol of the times," and "here to stay" are typical pro arguments. The anti counter: "Bobbed hair is passe; a shorn head is not conducive to beauty; this year's beauty will have long tresses."

Washington—March 19 will be Bryan Day. The Commoner's birthday has been so designated by the William Jennings Bryan Memorial Association.

Nature Not Economical
Although electric light from an incandescent lamp represents only one-half of 1 per cent of the energy in coal burned to generate electric current—thanks to losses made has not yet learned to eliminate still nature is not so far ahead of man in efficiency. A Princeton professor has calculated that the freely—that marvel of efficiency in the production of cold light—wastes 99 per cent of the energy he puts into illuminating his tail.

of the poem. The poet has sensed a great truth or has been stirred in soul by a noble idea, and through his imagination he gives this truth or idea expression. From illustration again, we discover that the lesson taught by the poem is sometimes put in direct words but more often merely suggested.

"Now, with popular anthologies of modern verse, the classes meet regular assignments from day to day. Groups of poems are studied for appreciation. Incidentally, lives of poets are touched upon. Some pupils are quite happy to find that Sidney Lanier's 'Song of the Chattahoochee' has aesthetic value for every appeal—sound, image, pattern and noble thought. Others are satisfied with certain poems for mere pleasure of sound, so sweet is the melody alone."

At the end of five weeks the pupils are given two or three days in which to produce sonnets of their own. An example of the work of this year's senior class is the following sonnet by Gladys Brown:

Spring.
The days of spring are bright, and clear, and blue.
While nights are dark, yet quiet and sublime.
And think take on a happy, peaceful hue.
Yes, everything about is cheerful and serene.
Now as we gaze up high into the sky,
Soft fleecy clouds in golden masses roll.
The deep blue depths on which they lie
Make backgrounds for new shapes as they unfold.
Below, the tulip opens toward the sun.
The sweet mayflower resumes her tender when,
While pussy-willow lifts her head and winks.
But ah! Too soon they all must fade and die.
Fast comes the dainty spring on quiet wings,
And summer comes with deep, maturer things.

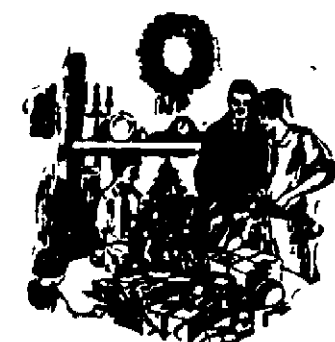

LUCKY STRIKES are smooth and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked.

They are kind to your throat.

Why? All because they are made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process in treating the tobacco.

Hoppe's Fight to Recover Title

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—Willie Hoppe, a conspicuous figure in international billiards for twenty-four years, tonight will begin his fight to recover the world's 18.2 balkline title won from him by Jake Schaefer of Chicago two years ago.

In the path of his attempted comeback stands Erich Hagenlacher, cool, quiet, calculating German star. Hagenlacher, the man who unexpectedly overthrew Schaefer last spring, apparently has no fears of losing his championship. In two previous matches he won victories over Hoppe. But metropolitan students of the game consider the veteran former titleholder to be playing in such brilliant form that they have installed him a favorite to regain the honors he held for more than a decade.

Hoppe, who for many years ruled supreme in every branch of the balking game, enters the opening 600 points block of the 1,500 point duel without a championship for the first time in his career. He lost the last of his crowns—the 18.1 diamond—to Schaefer almost a year ago.

Chick Gandil Tells His Story

Another Chicago White Sox Player Who Was Barred in Cleanup of 1920 Leaves New Mexico for Chicago to Visit Landis.

CHICK GANDIL

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP).—Sweede Risberg came to Chicago today to hang some ten year old baseball linen on the line in Commissioner Landis's office, and defy more than a score of the game's greatest stars to deny that it was dirty.

While Risberg was digging into the basket, hauling into the light some of the rags of 1917, Chick Gandil, another of the Chicago White Sox players disinherited by baseball in the grand cleanup of 1920, was Chicago bound from New Mexico, presumably bringing another bundle of soiled linen for Landis to look at.

Risberg left his dairy farm at Rochester, Minn., last night to come here to face players of the Chicago and Detroit teams of 1917, in which year, he charges, the Detroit Tigers "sloughed" a four game series to help the Sox win the American League pennant.

Before his departure from Rochester, Risberg said: "I could tell a lot of things I heard about during the four years I was with the White Sox, but most of it was hearsay, and I am not going to talk about anything that came to me second handed."

"Last Saturday I told Commissioner Landis of corruption from my own knowledge of the facts, and am going to stick to my story. When I said Clarence Rowland (an umpire, but in 1917 the manager of the Sox) instigated the plot to give Detroit players a certain sum of money, I did so because Rowland was the man who talked to me about it, no matter what he says now."

Rowland, who was one of the first of those named by Risberg to deny the charges, believes the box score of the games exonerate him. Commissioner Landis today became judge jury, prosecutor and defense attorney. Banked about him are such diamond figures as Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, George Burns, Ty Cobb, Harry Heilmann and many others of the 28 who were requested to attend, each intent upon defending himself against the implications of giving or receiving money for "throwing" ball games.

With Gandil, Buck Weaver and Oscar (Happy) Felsch, all blacklisted from baseball with Risberg in 1920 for alleged crookedness in the 1919 world series, standing in the background, there was more than a possibility that new charges or elaboration of Risberg's would be heard in the offices from which baseball is ruled.

TEACHERS SUCCUMB TO QUINITY OF MERCHANTS

Tuesday night proved a 'lateral' one for the high school team in the Mercantile League. The teachers were defeated by the Van Wagenen's, the merchants taking every game of the three played. Fleming of the Van Wagenen's was the highest point-getter of the game and succeeded in getting a score of 522. Paul of the teachers' forces made a mark of 506 which was the next highest individual score of the contest.

WIDE WILL NEED SIX WEEKS OF TRAINING

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—Six weeks of training will be required by Edwin Wide before the American public can have its first glimpse of the Swedish running sensation in competition.

The conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, who arrived in this country yesterday on the Berengaria primarily to study the American educational system, disclosed that he has not been in action since last September and is eight pounds overweight. He will take his workouts at the Newark A. C., Newark, N. J., under Coach Carl Anderson.

A. A. U. officials announced that they would take steps to oppose guidance of Wide in this country by a manager. Claiming that the troubles of Nurmi and Charley Hoff arose out of such arrangements, President Murray Hulbert said he could see "no reason why an amateur athlete should have a manager."

Wide is a modest, reticent schoolmaster of 31 years.

NEW COUNTRY CLUB FOR WOMEN MEMBERS

New York, Jan. 3 (AP).—Organization of a new country club exclusively for women members, located in Westchester county, between Greenwich, Conn., and Bedford, N. Y., has been announced by Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, former national golf champion. It will be known as the Women's Westchester Golf and Tennis Club, and if present plans materialize will be opened formally by the summer of 1928.

The club will be the second of its kind in the country and modeled somewhat after its predecessor, the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club of Glen Head, Long Island. It is the hope of women golfers, Miss Collett explained, that such organizations as these will form the foundation for a national group of clubs offering adequate facilities for holding future women's championship events.

The Westchester club's membership goal is 300, but building operations will start, Miss Collett said, as soon as 150 are enrolled.

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press)

New high jump standards, designed to prevent alleged "diving" through the use of the arm in holding the cross bar steady, will be tried out Saturday night at the first major Metropolitan track meet. Gail Robinson, Metropolitan indoor champion, will be one of the first to soar over the test apparatus.

Tom Heenry, champion of New Zealand and South Africa, has broken into the metropolitan heavyweight picture with a first day knockout over boxing writer. Tom won a decision in type upon his arrival by admitting at the outset he had no hopes of conquering Gene Tunney.

Edwin Wide, Swedish running sensation, likes coffee. The conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, here to break some of the Finn's indoor track marks, says he takes two or three cups of it frequently, at a single meal.
